Colour Cosmetics – Thai Consumer – 2023

This report looks at the following areas:

- The trends impacting the colour cosmetics category in Thailand
- Usage behaviours and attitudes towards colour cosmetics
- Purchasing criteria and interest in colour cosmetic features
- Opportunities and applications for product development in the colour cosmetics category

Innovate in base makeup for sensitive skin, and cater to the growing demand for customisable point makeup. Provide streamlined makeup solutions for male users.

Overview

Skin health holds significant importance for Thai consumers, with many seeking to combine their skincare routine with their makeup one. As such, consumers demand makeup products that offer skincare benefits. Interestingly, those willing to invest in such products tend to have sensitive skin. However, the innovation in base makeup catering to sensitive skin is currently limited, highlighting an opportunity for brands to address this specific need.

The purchase of point makeup products, on the other hand, is primarily driven by the availability of extensive colour options that can be tailored to individual preferences. These products find favour among trend-savvy younger women eager to stay up-to-date with the latest makeup styles. This enthusiasm highlights the potential for versatile and customisable products achieved through innovative formulas and packaging.

Moreover, the adoption of soft masculinity has positively influenced the acceptance of men wearing makeup, leading to increased usage among Thai men. This dynamic market presents
