establishing enduring associations with consumers. Brands that choose to take the lead in promoting social responsibilities may appeal to consumers, such as assuming the role of long-term market education to promote niche sports and the spirit of sportsmanship.

Niche brands should take note that community marketing – starting from the core target group – can be the golden ticket to market penetration. However, it's essential not to neglect the importance of product competency in ensuring long-term success. This is often seen in emerging brands where potential consumers are drawn to the brand but do not make repeated purchases.
